CONGREGATIONALISTS MEET

Leaders in the Denomination Give Inspiring Addresses Before Members of Andover Association of Churches and Ministers at the Free Church Yesterday.

A group of most inspiring and impressive speakers, all leaders of the denomination, made the meeting of the Andover Association of Congregational Churches and Ministers held yesterday afternoon and evening at the Free church a noteworthy event.

Among the speakers were F. L. Fagley, D. D. secretary of the Commission on Evangelism, Rev. Arthur M. Ellis, pastor of the Richmond Hill church of Brooklyn, N. Y., Rev. F. E. Emrich, D. D., secretary of the Home Missionary society, Rev. Charles E. Burton, secretary of the National Council, and Rev. William Horace Day, D. D., chairman of the Commission on Evangelism, pastor of the United church of Bridgeport, Connecticut.

The afternoon session opened at three o'clock with a devotional service led by Rev. G. H. Cummings of Dracut, followed by the report of the committee in systematic benevolences read by Rev. E. A. Jenkins of North Chelmsford.

The simple kind of unmanufactured testimony from one person to another of the value of Christian faith is the sort of evangelism our Congregational churches stand for as described in the address by Rev. F. L. Fagley.

Rev. Mr. Ellis of Brooklyn reported on the methods by which his church carries on personal evangelism. Church canvasses, church entertainments and well systematized methods of reaching the individual have all contributed to organizing the church in spiritual work.

The last speaker of the afternoon session was Dr. Emrich, secretary of the Home Missionary society, who spoke on the value of fellowship in realizing joy and efficiency in Christian life and showed how comprehensive Congregational faith is in a wide variety of fellowship.

A devotional service, led by Rev. E. Victor Bigelow of the South church opened the evening session.

Taking as his subject "Paths to Power," Rev. Charles E. Burton held his hearers for an hour as he told of the limitless undeveloped resources for bringing about the Christianity of the world which one had only to

The Andover Chamber of Commerce Begins Work in Earnest. Will Make Drive for Members

The executive officers of the Andover Chamber of Commerce have become very busy in constructive activity, and the wheels are in operation for a better, bigger and busier Andover.

The membership committee has completed plans for a campaign to obtain new members and the drive will be started all over town in a few days.

Already questions are being asked like some of the following:

What is the fundamental idea of a Chamber of Commerce?

Who will run the Andover Chamber of Commerce?

What have Chambers of Commerce ever done?

How are you going to keep the interest of the membership at white heat?

A Chamber of Commerce is a band of citizens working unselfishly for the good of the entire town. An organization such as the Chamber of Commerce is the only logical one which can bring about any constructive development. There is never any real constructive work attempted by any of the fraternal organizations as this type of work can best be done by the united effort of the entire citizenship.

The Andover Chamber of Commerce is going to be run by the members themselves, as all of the members will be on an equal footing, and in the choice of work for the Chamber each member will have just as much to say as the member next to him.

The monthly forum meeting will be a feature of the Chamber as it will serve to bring about expert discussion on new projects and new proposals and in effect will be a dynamo to furnish motion and direction for the Chamber as an organization representing the entire town.

THREE FIRES THIS WEEK

Serious Conflagration Destroying Barn on Chestnut Street Believed to Be Work of Incendiary

Almost smothered by smoke the family of Charles Hill of Chestnut street was with difficulty roused by passing automobilists shortly before one o'clock Wednesday morning to find the ell of the house and the barn a mass of flames.

The fire department responded promptly to an alarm given by telephone and within a few minutes four streams of water were playing onto the blaze. With difficulty the fire was confined to the barn and rear of the house which were completely gutted.

The contents of the barn including furniture, clothing in storage, garden tools, robes and a Ford truck were destroyed. Two Maxwell automobiles, a sedan and touring car, the property of B. H. Campbell and Mr. Hill were driven to a place of safety.

The flames rose high in the air and the wind carried the sparks to the roofs of nearby buildings. The barn attached to the Andrews house on Main street in which is housed the valuable collection of the Andover Historical society and the roof of the residence of Frank B. Grout on Main street both caught fire.

The damage is estimated at about $3000, partially covered by insurance. The all-out signal sounded about 4 o'clock.

The fire drew a large crowd of onlookers as this part of the town is central and thickly settled.

The fact that this is the third fire within the week apparently of incendiary origin has been a matter of grave concern. The State police have been notified and will give their assistance in investigating the situation.

Both of Andover's Shoe Shops were damaged.

With the gorgeous hues of the rainbow as a background, Andover enjoyed to the full the opening afternoon and evening of the Andover Guild when the doors of the town hall were thrown open to the public yesterday.

The wonderful treatment of the color scheme planned by H. Winthrop Peirce and carried out under the direction of Miss Alice Jenkins and her able assistants has produced a unique and beautiful scene. Red, orange, yellow, green, blue and violet in the decorations of the tables, the costumes of the attendants and the lighting effects makes a gorgeous but harmonious effect softened by the lavish use of the green of pine boughs.

Unusually attractive lines of articles are displayed for sale and the receipts on the first afternoon were most encouraging. Purchases may be made to suit the pocket-book, whether lean or full, varying from a bag of peanuts or an ice cream cone to handsome negligees which are a luxury for the more fortunate. Practical shopping may be done, such as the purchase of aprons, baskets, cooked food or vegetables, or one may indulge a taste for sweets, flowers, articles of virtue, or have one's fortune told.

The evening's entertainment drew a full house which was most appreciative of the varied and finished program offered. The dances were quite unusual and the appropriate costumes gave each one a special interest. The toy ballet with its fascinating Black Dinahs in scarlet dresses, checked aprons and turbans, dainty French dolls, rag dolls, the battered and abused doll, talking doll and gaily painted jumping jacks was an especially taking number. Little Jean Scannell, as the abused doll, sang "I've a pain in my saw-dust" and was heartily applauded.

The cabaret dance by Madame X and Madame Y aroused great interest because of the remarkably effective costumes which completely disguised the graceful dancers. Their true names were later discovered to be Mrs. J. Harry Kidder and Miss Sybil

Mae Murray's New Picture Spanish

In "Fascination," Mae Murray's latest production, presented by Robert Z. Leonard at the Colonial Theatre on Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 30-31, the famous Metro star turns to Spain for her background.

In "Fascination" she appears as the daughter of a Spanish father and an American mother. The combination of the Lin temperament and the Anglo-Saxon gives Mae Murray a wonderful opportunity to do remarkable acting as Dolores De Lisa. She portrays the part of a young girl who, revolting against the chaperonage of an aunt, decides to give herself a holiday. Disguising herself in a black wig and holiday garb she attends a bull fight against the wishes of her aunt. At the bull fight she meets Carrita, a handsome young torero, who fascinates her immediately. It is this fascination that supplies the main motive for the play, for under its spell Dolores becomes involved in a series of breath-taking incidents.

The scenes are elaborate and lavish, and are complete in technical detail.

In "Fascination," Mae Murray adds another famous characterization to her already notable gallery of portraits. All the primitive passion of the Spanish girl is conveyed strikingly by the popular star. In this picture too, she performs several Spanish dances which even natives declare are every bit original.

An unusually strong supporting cast has been assembled for the picture. Among them may be mentioned Helen Ware, Creighton Hale, Vincent Coleman, Courtney Foote, Charles Lane, Robert Frazer, and Emily Fitzroy.

LAWRENCE COLONIAL

Dealing with a side of life that always holds a fascination for the average person, "The Mirage," the nationally famous Edgar Selwyn comedy-drama success, will be the special offering of Ye Colonial Players in Lawrence for next week. In presenting this great play, Manager Charles Cook is offering the patrons of his popular playhouse a treat that ran on Broadway, New York, for one solid year. Then Florence Reed was the leading woman. The play met with phenomenal success there and on the road, and should be a big attraction with dainty Lenita Lane in the leading role.

The story of "The Mirage" is a gripping picture taken from life and tempered with the most delightful sort of comedy. It tells the story of a girl who has come from a small town, fallen into a certain phase of life in a large city, and then finds herself face to face with the sweetheart of her girlhood, the desire to go back home and start life all over again gripping at her heartstrings. Swiftly, relentlessly, the net of circumstances closes about her. The house of false cards, it has built, through the machinations of "the other man" begins to tumble down about her ears. Then her childhood lover agrees to forget and forgive. It is at this moment that the big thing comes into her life. Realizing that she can only bring unhappiness to him, she sends him back, and stays herself.

"The Mirage" is the story of a big, heart-sick woman, battling with circumstances and yet unselfish enough to put the man whom she loves ahead of everything else in her life. It will be played by the full strength of Ye Colonial Players and under the direction of Bernard Steele.

PLYMOUTH

For many seasons the ideal of American authors and managers has been to make their casts for dramatic productions as small as possible. Not so apparently in Spain, for the famous actor-author, Jacinto Benavente, as prodigal of dramatic talent as Shakespeare, his model whom the Spanish proudly claim he resembles most of modern dramatists. In this great romantic comedy, "Field of Ermine," which Nance O'Neill is producing this year, following his last season's success, "The Passion Flower," there is a cast of twenty speaking characters. Some of them appear only in one act, but each is a clear-cut character gem. Benavente was a popular player on the Spanish stage before, like Shakespeare and Pinter, he began to write plays. Consequently, he knows how to create character "bits," which though brief, stand out sharply and have an important bearing on the development of the plot. It is said of Benavente that he never writes a line without a purpose, and at the same time he never labels or classifies his characters. Each stands on his or her own feet, and the character as well as the story develops from the dialogue. Miss O'Neill's production has been made by Livingston Platt from models from the Lara Theatre of Madrid, and her company includes such well-known players as Lumden Hale, Grant Stewart, Alice Fisher, Marie Shotwell and Alfred Hickman, who also staged the play. Miss O'Neill will present "Field of Ermine" in Boston October 30 at the Plymouth Theatre for two weeks only, with matinees on Thursday and Saturday.

SHUBERT

The greatest of the lavish musical productions which the Messrs. Shubert have made at the palatial Century Theatre in New York, "The Rose of Stamboul" is at the Shubert Theatre, Boston, for two weeks, with Tessa Kosta, James Barton and Marion Green at the head of the cast, and will play its last week beginning Monday, October 30. A surprise is handed the theatrical world with the announcement that "The Rose of Stamboul" is to be seen on tour. This transcendent Viennese operetta was presented on such a lavish scale that even the most blasé of the producers of musical extravaganzas. The stage billowed with silk and gold and glittering effects. In addition the cast was studded with stars, headed by three leading lights of musical comedy, Tessa Kosta and Marion Green—two singers with voices of grand opera calibre—and James Barton, the one genuine discovery among comedians since Al Johnson came to the Winter Garden ten years ago. These three stars are in the cast of "The Rose of Stamboul" at the Shubert Theatre.

When this operetta was offered to New York last season, rival managers regarded it as a dare, but it was a challenge no one cared to accept. Of course, it was not expected that the Messrs. Shubert would send a mammoth production on tour. However, having assembled this piece of resistance to theatrical fare, it is not their intention to dissemble it until it has visited at least the principal cities of the East. So the original cast and production are making a triumphant tour of the chief cities of the Atlantic seaboard—and the three big stars still remain at the head of the personnel.

Having announced a policy of prewar prices for all their productions, the Messrs. Shubert will not deviate from this policy and are offering "The Rose of Stamboul" at the regular scale of prices, with a popular-priced Wednesday matinee.

WILBUR

It is far from exaggeration to speak of "The Bat" as the "million dollar mystery play." As an actual matter of fact, figuring on a most conservative basis, "The Bat" should easily show a net profit of three million dollars before it passes out of the hands of the producers, Wagners and Kemper.

"The Bat" is certain to prove of universal appeal. It is now rounding out its first year in London and about the middle of September Sir Hugh Ward will present it in Melbourne, Australia. It is an assured success in England and will prove as successful in Australia as it has been in the United States. Gilbert, the son of Henry Miller, paid $50,000 for the English rights and $10,000 advance was the amount paid for the Australian rights. Add to this the fact that without question "The Bat" is the most successful dramatic attraction in the United States, it is easily understood that such high prices are paid for it.

The English and Australian rights, the French, South African, and Scandinavian rights were sold for $5,000 each. In addition to the payments for the rights to play "The Bat" in these various countries, a royalty of 15 per cent is paid by the producers in these foreign places. Wagners and Kemper have already refused $110,000 for the picture rights of the show famous mystery play.

As to the earnings of "The Bat" in the United States, the figures are accurate as they are, actually challenge the belief of anyone. Yet they are indisputable. In New York the earnings of "The Bat" has made a profit of more than $6000 a week for many weeks. It is estimated that the gross profit during its stay of two years and ten days will easily reach $300,000 for the producers. New York, Chicago, and Philadelphia, enriched the coffers of Wagners and Kemper to the extent of over one million dollars. It is easily seen by these figures the enormous revenue in royalties that is paid the authors Mary Roberts Rinehart and Avery Hopwood.

"The Bat" continues to play to packed houses at all performances. The third month at the Wilbur Theatre, Boston, begins October 30th. As seats are on sale eight weeks in advance, out of town patrons may easily order their tickets by mail, well in advance.

MAJESTIC

Boston will see one of the most celebrated of all great Shubert vaudeville unit shows at the Majestic Theatre, for the week of October 30, when Arthur Pearson presents his newest and most pretentious production, "Zig Zag." Moreover it is a gun of the sixty centimeter variety and one that has been truly heard around the world.

"Zig Zag" first saw the light of day in the trenches of France when it was born amidst shot and shell to keep up the morale of our fighting troops. Under this title, the show played every continent in the war-stricken country, being presented in tents, on motor trucks and even in the open fields for the education of the soldiers.

In presenting America with "Zig Zag," Mr. Pearson has retained only the title, since he felt the theatre-going public was entitled to the latest quips, the snappiest tunes and the most melodious jingles the modern-day writers were capable of. And so it is that "Zig Zag" may be described as the last word in modernism.

"Zig Zag" is a revue of events, economical, political or just amusing, interspersed with a series of musical numbers, a charming cast of principals and a superlative chorus of youth, charm and grace. Scenically, it is declared to be the superior of the average revue and certainly recognizes no peer in the field of amusement.

The melodies are destined to be whistled and danced to, long after "Zig Zag" has left this city and its presentation will be long remembered for its many special features, including Ames and Winthrop, Harry Welsh, Jamie Coughlin, Alice Lawlor, Catherine Crawford, Hap Hadley and his models, Patti Moore and Harry Peterson, and the celebrated humanized chimpanzees, Max and Monty.

The Post extends an invitation to the members of the British and Colonial War Veterans Club to attend the Armistice Day events, the ball, Memorial hall services and town hall services.

Plan to Provide Ambulance for Andover

A meeting of representatives from every church and social and fraternal organization in town has been called for this evening at the engine house on Park street by members of the board of engineers who are interested in providing an ambulance for the town of Andover.

Frequent emergency calls have been made upon the firemen who have risen to the occasion with such inadequate equipment as they had at hand. The matter was placed before the members of the company by Fred L. Collins who was an active worker on the Andover Comfort Committee during the World war.

All the members of the board of fire engineers are in favor of the project and they believe that the ambulance can be manned without any immediate addition to their force.

The following letter has been sent out to various local organizations and many of them have signified their intentions of sending representatives to tonight's meeting.

The ever increasing number of accident and sickness cases occurring on our streets and in our factories must forcibly impress upon the attention of every citizen the utter lack of facilities in our town to care for the unfortunates, either to render prompt and proper assistance by first aid methods, or a humane conveyance subject to call in an emergency, to rush them to a hospital, especially so in serious cases where minutes often mean life or death with its consequent sadness and hardship to many families.

For the purpose of taking some concrete action toward remedying this deplorable condition, and with the approval and endorsement of our town officers and many prominent citizens, the members of the Fire Department have inaugurated a movement to raise sufficient funds towards the purchase of an automobile ambulance to be stationed at the Engine house where it will be subject to call night or day, and they respectfully solicit your approval and support.

An invitation is extended to every Fraternal, Social and Athletic body in Andover to join in the movement with the Fire company by delegating two representatives to meet at the Engine House on the evening of October 27, 1922, at 8 o'clock to discuss and formulate ways and means of raising the necessary funds that this very needed and worthy object may be secured.

Sincerely yours,

J. Fred Coles, Acting Chairman of Committee.

Ivan E. Stedman, Acting Clerk of Committee.

South Church Men's Club

"As a mediator among the representatives of the nations gathered around the conference table, America can make the greatest contribution toward the peace of the world and universal well-being," said Representative John Jacob Rogers speaking before the Men's Club of the South Church last Friday evening. Mr. Rogers believes in an adequate army and navy as an insurance against war, but in a reduction of armament by a series of limitation conferences and not by example.

The subject of his address was, "Our Changing Obligations," and he spoke at some length on immigration, national defense, and the situation in the Near East.

The status of the United States has changed greatly in the last twenty-five years. Then it was a magnificent country but had no interests beyond its own borders and was not a world power. The Spanish War changed all this and with the acquisition of Cuba and Porto Rico, and later the Philippine Islands and Hawaii we came into a relation with the other powers before unknown, and numerous problems confronted us, culminating in the active part which the United States played in the World War.

Immigration is still a live issue. After the Civil War the noted poet and orator, James Russell Lowell, prophesied that it would be necessary to restrict the flow of immigration to these shores, but not until the 80's was there anything done in the way of investigation into this serious problem. In 1890 a commission was appointed which reported in forty-three volumes, the purport of which, when summed down, was a recommendation of the literacy test. This literacy test provided that every immigrant must be able to read forty words either in English or in his native language. The provision was vetoed by President Taft, as well as by President Wilson, but was finally passed over President Wilson's veto by a two-thirds vote of both the Senate and the House.

Even this restriction did not seem adequate, and the three per cent law was passed and has been in operation about a year and a half. As an example, only 30,000 Portuguese, or three per cent of the 1,000,000 already in this country, were admitted in the twelve months from June 30, 1921, to June 30, 1922. In 1914 there were 1,250,000 immigrants, but in 1922 only 300,000. As a matter of fact, 200,000 foreign-born emigrated to their native lands during the twelve months, leaving a net gain of only 100,000.

Those who come to these shores from northern and western Europe are more easily assimilated than those from southern and eastern Europe. Before the war, three-quarters of our immigrants came from the last-mentioned sections. Last year more of these people left the country than arrived, although they were admitted up to the full limit of the quota. Less than one-half of the quota from Northern Europe sought admission, yet on the other hand, very few of them returned to Europe, so that in reality there are in this country at the present time more of what is considered the desirable element than there was a year ago.

Congressman Rogers said that in the last year his judgment had changed on the subject of immigration, and he has become a restrictionist, believing that prospective citizens should be carefully scrutinized as to numbers and quality. Mr. Rogers has himself sponsored a system by which they may be scrutinized in Europe, as it is much more nearly possible to find out about the heart and soul of a man, and about his character and ability in his own country than it is after he has arrived in America. Many patriotic persons still believe that this country should be an asylum for all comers, and it might be possible to increase the percentage admitted, from three to four or even five per cent.

The problem of national defense, with our island possessions, extensive coast line, and borders including the Canal Zone, was next touched upon. The conference for the limitation of armaments held at Washington was pronounced by the speaker a milestone in history. Representatives of three of the powers, the United States, Great Britain, and Japan, ratified the treaty, but France and Italy were not partners to it, although nothing, in the opinion of the speaker, would so stabilize France as to ratify the Washington treaty.

In discussing the situation in the Near East, the speaker said that the retirement of Lloyd George was the direct consequence of reverses in the Near East. Turkey and Greece are but pawns of the great powers of western Europe, and the Turks are the great force in the Islamic movement which has had such a checkered career.

At the time of the World War, although the United States did not declare war upon Turkey, diplomatic relations were broken. Although the United States stands for open straits, for peace, an opportunity for clean fighting, for the protection of the Christian minorities in the Near East, armed interference is not to be lightly undertaken. The fighting is not in the nature of guerrilla warfare. Kamal Pasha, the leader of a well-drilled, well-equipped army of 300,000, is one of the great figures in the world today. He was the commander of the army which destroyed 100,000 men of the British army on the peninsula of Gallipoli at the time of the World War. In the opinion of military experts it would require 1,000,000 men to successfully meet on Turkish soil a hostile army already swollen with success and believing that they are fighting a holy war. Such an army could only be secured by the passage of a draft law which would not be practicable for interference in the Near East.

Mr. Rogers cited the case of the settlement of long-standing difficulties between Chili and Peru at the conference table in Washington, and hoped that similar conferences might in time settle the affairs of the whole world without resorting to war.

In opening his remarks Congressman Rogers paid a fitting tribute to Hon. John N. Cole, and the gathering stood in silence as a tribute to his memory.

At the meeting of the club on Friday evening, November 3, Colonel A. E. Foote, Commissioner of Public Safety, will be the speaker.

Abbot Notes

On Sunday afternoon about eighty-five of the students went to Lawrence to attend the concert given by Heifetz.

Miss Anna Kuhn gave an interesting talk on the history and needs of the Andover Guild at the conference table in Washington.

The annual masquerade dance was held on Tuesday evening in the Gymnasium. Miss Bailey, Miss Kelsey and the other members of the Faculty were at home to their friends on Wednesday evening.

Siftings

The inauguration of Marion Edwards Park, Ph.D., as the third president of Bryn Mawr College, took place on Saturday at 11 o'clock in the Cloister Garden of the Library.

The College News commented editorially on the new president as follows: "She has filled a position that seemed unfilled, she has taken up the traditions of Bryn Mawr and gone them one better: she has won the faculty by her wisdom, the undergraduate by her kindness, and the reporters by her humor."

Dr. Park is the granddaughter of Dr. Edwards A. Park, professor of theology in Andover Seminary and widely known a half century ago as preacher and controversial writer: a niece of the late Miss Agnes Park, a lifelong resident of Andover.

William Henry Chase, the composer, was himself present on the opening night of the Rainbow pageant and expressed himself as very much pleased by the rendering of his music played for the dances. He also attended the dress rehearsals giving generously of his time to co-operate with the producer, H. Winthrop Peirce, for a successful presentation.

The music for the toy ballet, "The Dance of Dolls" was an adaptation of his Valse Valse which has been played at several Pop concerts in Boston, while that for the extravaganza "The Princess who never Laughed," billed for Saturday night, was written especially for Mr. Peirce's play and will be heard for the first time in Andover.

He prepared the score for the orchestra and the appropriate music contributed largely to the success of last night's unique entertainment which was a brilliant success.

Mr. Chase also composed the music for "Bluebird" an operetta which was played for seven evenings in Brookline.

Mrs. Trueworthy White in addressing the women of Andover in Pynchard hall Tuesday evening gave much valuable information to those who are to exercise the privileges of the ballot at the coming election. It is to be regretted, however, that she had not informed herself as to the congressional and senatorial district in which she was speaking, but fortunately some of our women voters were able to give her the necessary information.

Congressman John Jacob Rogers paid our late townsman, the late Hon. John N. Cole, a generous tribute when speaking last week before the Men's Club of the South Church.

A personal anecdote illustrated Mr. Cole's devotion to and pride in his home town which should be an example to other sons of Andover. Mr. Cole, when dining with Mr. Rogers in Washington, one among the guests who were prominent in national affairs, if asked where he hailed from, invariably answered, "Andover." Identified as he was with state affairs, it would have been quite excusable to say that he was from Boston, but he preferred to be known as coming from Andover, whose interests he always held dear.

Eaton Wins Andover Golf Title from J. F. O'Connell

James H. Eaton won the Andover golf championship Saturday from J. F. O'Connell two up, in a stiffly contested match and like two of the contests played it was a see-saw fight that was only decided on the last hole. Eaton won the first hole with a par 4, but O'Connell evened it up with a par 3 on the second. Eaton won the third when his partner's drive was trapped and also the fourth. The fifth was halved and Eaton won the sixth, leaving him two up.

O'Connell by a fighting rally won the next three, leaving him one up at the turn. The match then see-sawed to the thirteenth hole where Eaton was one up, but O'Connell, after playing a fine second out of the right-hand rough, sunk a 12-foot putt for a birdie three, again squaring the match. Eaton was not dismayed and won the fifteenth, but O'Connell snapped a three on the sixteenth and the match was all even two to go. Both got phenomenally long drives on the seventeenth, but O'Connell guessed wrong between the wood and iron, and playing the latter fell far short of the green on his second, while his fellow-townsmen landed a beautiful iron on the carpet and got a four to his opponent's five and with this advantage won the home hole 4 to 5. Eaton's medal was 43-39-82; O'Connell's was 43-43-86.

The contest ended the Andover tournament play which was held October 10, the four low men playing off for the club championship. Eaton, who earlier this year at Woodland had defeated Clark Hodder, the winner of most open tournaments this season, defeated J. Duke Smith two up in the semifinals, while O'Connell had defeated Edward S. Selden 5 and 4.

Pageant of Ruth Presented

A large and interested audience attended the presentation of the pageant "Ruth," which members of the Courteous Circle of The King's Daughters gave in costume in the South Church vestry Sunday evening, repeating the play by special request.

The Bible story was delightfully told by Mrs. G. Edgar Folk and Mrs. F. G. Moore sang a song appropriate to the tale, accompanied by Mrs. F. Homer Foster. Mrs. Thaxter Eaton took the part of Ruth, Mrs. E. M. Huntress, of Naomi, Mrs. Harold Austin of Orpah, Miss Florence Abbott of Boaz, and Mrs. Avis Sanderson of the servant, and each in costume added much to the effectiveness of the scene.

Miss Madeline Hewes told of the work of the Union Christian Colleges in the Orient, to which the International Order of The King's Daughters is planning to make a substantial gift. A silver collection was taken.

Substantial Sum Realized at Rummage Sale

A very successful rummage sale, held last Friday in the Guild house under the auspices of the Tuesday Club, netted a substantial sum which will be used for philanthropic work. Clothes for men, women and children, shoes, millinery, books, china, and pictures all met with a ready sale, and articles which had outlived their usefulness in one house, had been passed on to new owners who saw possibilities for their further usefulness.

Mrs. George Hussey was chairman of the committee of which Mrs. V. D. Harrington and Mrs. Frank Hardy were also members. They were ably assisted by all the club members who united in the labor of the collection and sale of the articles.

Members of the committee wish to thank those who assisted in any way to make the affair a success.

Entered at Andover Postoffice as Second Class Matter

A Worthy Cause

Seldom has so united an effort been made to obtain funds for the furthering of a worthy charitable organization in Andover as has been the case with the pageant which is being offered the last three days of this week at the Town Hall. Laying aside all sectional divisions, forgetting the clique idea which is frequently so prevalent in the aiding of a charity of this sort, practically the entire town has co-operated in backing the project and in producing an entertainment worthy of the name.

For many years the Andover Guild has served the townspeople wisely and well, contributing to the mental and physical health of the community and adding much to the happiness and comfort of many homes. Its administration has at times been very difficult. Lack of proper equipment, a spirit of lassitude on the part of its supporters, and even open opposition have contributed to this difficulty.

A large attendance at the function this evening and again tomorrow will do much to convince the backers of the Guild that future years hold promise of the fulfillment of plans for the increasing of the scope of its activities. It is to be hoped most sincerely that Andover people will not neglect their opportunities to help out this good work.

Editorial Cinders

Main Street is finished. At least, one may now ride from the Phillips campus to the square without the discomfort of bumping over two curbstones and several bad holes in a very temporary road. Insistent demands have finally prevailed upon the powers that be, and the greater portion of the surplus dirt which has been serving as a plaything for the fall winds for the last two weeks has been removed. We again have the occasional thump, thump of a flat-wheeled trolley car to disturb the early evening and early morning slumbers of the inhabitants of Main Street and its near vicinity. Of course, our decorative lights have not yet been installed, there is still a decided announcement of all goings and comings in the square, and sweep as they might, there will be a fine powdery dust swirling about the streets until the snow flies. But the actual laying of the street, the completion of its passability may be considered an accomplished fact.

At the town meeting last year, much discussion arose from the question of the proper regulation of traffic not only on the Reading road but within the town itself. The condition of the street during its various phases of construction has presented ever-changing difficulties to the police force of the town. The completion of Main Street does not present a new difficulty but it does give rise to the reappearance of an old one: the proper regulation of the speed of motor vehicles past the intersecting streets from the top of the hill to the square. Blind corners, all of them, dangerous in the extreme, the driver entering from a side street is naturally expected to exercise due care, but the responsibility does not rest entirely with him, and the car travelling between thirty and forty miles an hour along the travelled thoroughfare should not escape severe reprimand and possible arrest by the traffic officer. Trucks especially will have to be governed, as we now will not have quite so much rumble and rattle to announce the downward approach of an uncontrolled truck. The last few days have seen many exhibitions of just such speed and carelessness along our newly paved street. It is a temptation to the reckless driver, a broad, smooth street and a sharp drop. It is easy to forget, after a year or two, serious accidents of the sort which occurred at the junction of Morton Street not so long ago. It is hard to forgive negligence on the part of those who might have made such an occurrence impossible, or at least improbable. The police force has handled the traffic troubles of a torn-up square in a generally satisfactory manner. Residents and visitors alike should be made to understand that Main Street is not a speedway but a first-class main street.

Gloucester seems to have had its full share of popularity lately, with its mysteries and its long-drawn-out series of races for the international trophy for fishing vessels. The former were so similar to all other so-called mysteries that most of us dismissed them with perhaps a daily glance at the black letters which we couldn't help seeing. However, the fishermen have caused more interest. Whether interest and notoriety have been to the advantage of the sport of schooner-racing, or not, can readily be seen by looking back to the first contest. Two years ago the Esperanto of Gloucester defeated the Delawana in two straight races. Some of us read about it and commented on it a little to our friends, but most of us didn't think much about it, and surely none of us believed the daily newspapers would ever make a ten-day sensation of an ocean race between two fishing schooners. Those of us that were interested couldn't help feeling that those contests were the nearest thing to clean fun and good sportsmanship that had yet happened. Now we find a race committee that has the power to call "no race" after taking the time of the contestants around the course at the respective turning marks, with the result that our American skipper—who, by the way, won this particular skirmish—gets disgusted. The whole performance is getting to look more and more like an "affair" and not the friendly "go" that it once was. This is the first time that the series has continued for more than two races. It has made it much more exciting and has probably shown that the boats are more evenly matched. We all feel sorry that it was not the American boat that won, but we can't help feeling that it is much more appropriate that the heavy-wind boat should have been the victor as a fishing schooner must be built and rigged to encounter the heavy gales which are to be expected on the Grand Banks, and these boats are really built for fishing and not for racing.

Women's Union Missionary Meeting

Mrs. Grace Grinnell Farmer, of Montclair, N. J., a speaker of wide influence through her lectures in the South and her addresses before the Northfield conferences, has been secured to speak to the church women of Andover at a union service to be held on Wednesday afternoon, November 1, in the South Church vestry, at three o'clock.

Mrs. Farmer works in the Baptist denomination, and a special invitation is extended to the women of the Baptist church as well as of the other churches to attend this meeting. The talk will be a pleasant introduction to the missionary study of the year, as the subject will be "Building with India", the mission textbook by Daniel J. Fleming. Mrs. Farmer will show what an excellent opportunity the book gives to gain a sympathetic understanding of the people of India, their aspirations, their achievements under great handicaps, their growing Christian church with its remarkable leaders.

Women of today begin to feel the obligation of world citizenship. This is one of the ways to become intelligent in regard to the people of a country of great importance in the world today.

The service is under the joint auspices of the prayer-meeting and missionary departments of the South Church Women's Union.

TO BOOST ANDOVER

First and last, it will be the means of bringing together the most responsible and most capable men of the town and keeping them working for the best interests of the whole community. Chambers of Commerce have done so much good in other towns that it is impossible to list here all the possibilities of the Andover Chamber through united effort. Chambers of Commerce are not working merely for the retail interests or the real estate group or any one group, but they are working for the entire town. When you come into the Chamber of Commerce you will find it easy to get action on any worth while idea you may have.

To keep the interest at white heat, the Chamber will no doubt have a system of committee organization, that will give each member a chance to work for his pet project, making the Andover Chamber of Commerce a central dynamic force for the whole community. Instead of the old question of "what will I get out of it," it will be "what can I render through the Chamber to make Andover a bigger, better and busier town to live in."

ANDOVER CONFERENCE

reach out and use. Speaking especially to ministers, he said that each one has within himself untold resources of power for leadership in the Christian faith. These resources are controlled by the emotions rather than by the intellect although they may be marshalled by an effort of the will. Mismatched emotions may wreck us if not controlled.

The value and power of instinctive emotions when wisely directed was discussed, citing the possibilities of the inspiration of fear, especially fear of the Lord as a source of power. This emotion may be made the source of power for endeavor beyond the ordinary.

A valuable undeveloped resource of power is found in members of the Congregational denomination, only 300,000 among 800,000 being active workers. He urged everyone to get to work, laymen as well as clergymen, pointing out the inestimable power for christianizing the world in even half a million active earnest workers.

A 100 per cent church attendance was a part of the high standard set for the men of the church as outlined by Rev. William Horace Day of Bridgeport, Conn., in his address on "The Church and Her Men." A 50-50 church with an attendance of an equal number of men and women was the goal set by one church. An important service which men can render is as teachers in the Sunday school where men whom boys can look up to should be found as leaders of the classes.

In his own church where a membership committee visited delinquent attendants once in three months, Rev. Mr. Day has been rewarded by a steadily increasing membership.

He defined the functions of the church as worship, education, social human service and evangelism and in all these the men should have an active part.

At the business session held in the afternoon the following resolutions were presented and unanimously adopted by the Conference:

The Andover Conference urges upon all the churches and their members the duty of actively supporting the cause of temperance at the coming election on November 7, by voting "yes" on Referendum Question Number 4, on the ballot, being in reference to the State Law to forbid the sale of intoxicating liquor; and to urge all with whom they have influence to do the same.

To President Harding: The Andover Conference of Congregational churches, representing the Congregationalists of Lowell, Lawrence, and the adjoining towns in Massachusetts, having made earnest petition to the Ruler of this universe for His hand to restrain the cruelties of the Turkish army in driving Christian people out of their ancestral homes, now turns to you the chief executive of the American people to petition you for some open expression by this government of the deep revulsion of our people against these gigantic horrors.

We humbly beseech you to make public protest to the Angora government and Mustafa Kemal within the limits of international courtesy that any Christians in their lands are co-religionists with almost our entire population and that such enormous violations of human rights cannot be regarded by us as friendly deportment toward this nation.

It seems to us that such representations on the part of our government are well within the bounds of international friendship and that their utterance, even if unproductive, is our humane duty.

An excellent supper consisting of cold ham, beans, potato salad, relishes, rolls, doughnuts, pies and co'ee and fruit was served under the direction of the following committee: Mrs. Harry A. Ramsdell, chairman; Mrs. Samuel Harris, Mrs. Charles Myer, Mrs. Thomas Peters, Mrs. Jesse Dunwoode, Mrs. William Morrisey, and Mrs. Lewis Paine.

The harvest decorations of baskets of fruit were arranged by Miss Florence Parker, Mrs. Henry Dea, Mrs. William Faulkner and Miss Edith Donald.

Those who assisted in serving were Misses Grace Lake, Ina Petrie, Priscilla Coleman, Bertha Cuthill, Mary Caldwell, Mary Scott, Jessie Cotts, Olive Mitchell, Mary Fowler, Marjorie Bissett, Hilda McKenna, Eva Mehlman and Susan Bissett, and James Souter, Russell Carter, and Herbert Otis.

WEDDINGS

AUTY-SULLIVAN

Wednesday afternoon in St. Augustine's church, Miss Anna G. Sullivan, daughter of Mrs. Christina L. Sullivan of Red Spring Road, and Herbert Auty of South Lawrence were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by Rev. John A. Nugent, O. A. S., pastor of the church.

There was a large gathering of relatives and friends at the church and as the bridal party entered Frank Dowd sang "O Promise Me," after which Miss Annie G. Doneyan, organist, played the wedding march from Lohengrin and at the close of the ceremony, Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Agnes Sullivan and Joseph Cronin of Ballardvale, cousin of the bride, was best man. The flower girls were Gertrude Cronin of Lowell and Rita Lynch of Lawrence. Joseph O'Neill of Dorchester, cousin of the bride, John Sullivan, brother of the bride, and William Purcell and Alfred White of South Lawrence were the ushers.

The bride was attractively gowned in white georgette over satin. Her tulle veil was caught up with orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid wore orchid satin trimmed with rainbow colors and carried pink roses. The house decorations were autumn foliage and potted plants.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home and 150 guests were present from New York, Connecticut, Newport, R. I., Boston, Dorchester, Brighton, Lawrence and the Andovers. Caterer Weigel of Lawrence served a buffet lunch. During the reception an orchestra from Boston rendered selections and also played for the dancing which was enjoyed in the barn, brilliantly illuminated with Japanese lanterns and prettily decorated for the occasion.

Both are popular young people and they were the recipients of many beautiful wedding gifts of silver and cut glass. The groom was a member of Battery F, 102d F. A., Yankee Division, enlisting with the Andover boys early in 1917. He served overseas throughout the war. On his return he was badly injured in an accident at Camp Devens and barely escaped with his life.

Mr. and Mrs. Auty left for a wedding trip which will be spent in Omaha, Neb., with the bride's brother, Stephen Sullivan. On their return they will reside on Boxford street, South Lawrence and will be at home after December 1.

ALEXANDER - WELCH

A very pretty wedding took place Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock in St. Augustine church when Miss Mary A. Welch, daughter of Mrs. Mary A. Welch of 74 Summer street, became the bride of John P. Alexander of North Andover.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. John A. Nugent, O. A. S., pastor of the church. Before the ceremony Miss Annie G. Doneyan, organist, played "Oh, Promise Me" and "Memories" and as the bridal party entered the church, the wedding march from Lohengrin. As a recessional she rendered Mendelssohn's wedding march.

The bride wore a beautiful dress of white duchess satin with silver and pearl trimming. She wore a delicate lace veil caught with pearls and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Margaret T. Welch, who wore a dress of orchid crepe de chine with hat to match and carried pink roses. David A. Keuhner, a cousin of the bride, was best man. The ushers were James F. Welch, brother of the bride, and Frederick Keuhner. The groom's gift to the best man was a ruby stick-pin and the gifts to the bridesmaid and ushers were gold pieces.

A reception followed at the house which was artistically decorated with palms and cut flowers and nearly 100 guests were present from New Jersey, Maine, New York, Boston, Lawrence, North Andover, Groveland and Andover. A wedding supper was served by Caterer Weigel of Lawrence. They received a great array of beautiful wedding gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander are on a wedding trip to Washington, Atlantic City and Philadelphia, and on their return will live at 74 Summer street.

Both are well known young people and the groom has been a successful director of minstrel shows. He is also an entertainer of much ability and has frequently appeared at local gatherings.

THE END OF THE RAINBOW

Kidder. The conception of the dance and costumes is said by Mr. Peirce to have originated in the mind of Miss Kidder with the details worked out by the producer.

The graceful dancing of Mrs. E. Barton Chapin, a monologue dance by Miss Helen Higgins and a group of songs sung by Miss Ruth Mitchell each contributed an interesting feature to the program.

The final number, the "Dance of the Rainbow" was a gorgeous spectacle. The Winds, Sunbeams, Raindrops introduced the Colors and finally as a grand climax "She who brings in the Pot of gold."

The careful drilling of the little dancers by Miss Vivian Taylor, superintendent of the Guild, deserves unstinted praise; to prepare so large a group of dancers, many of them extremely youthful, was no trifling task.

The excellent work of Mrs. Sparks and Dwyer's orchestra as accompanist contributed to the success of an entertainment which is surely another feather in the cap of the producer, H. Winthrop Peirce.

The program for the three evenings is given below and those for tonight and tomorrow give promise of equal if not superior entertainments and it is probable that the Town hall will be taxed to its full capacity.

Great interest attaches to the dancing this evening of the pupils of Miss Gladys Gilman of Haverhill. Miss Gilman is herself a graduate of the Vestoff School of New York and she is said to have a group of pupils which are a great credit to their teacher.

Those who assisted Miss Alice Jenkins as members of the decorating committee were Mrs. Katherine M. Pinckney, Miss Esther Smith, Mrs. G. M. Holmes, F. E. Cheever, Brooks Cheever, Jesse West and Eric Hulme.

A young boy about 14 years of age who gave his name as Ernest Crosby was found in this village Saturday afternoon by Constable George Sparks. Constable Sparks returned the boy to the Institution.

Miss Rose Coyle of River street met with a painful accident Sunday afternoon. Friends calling, found Miss Coyle lying in the cellar. Dr. P. J. Look was summoned and ordered her removed to the Lawrence General Hospital, where it was found Miss Coyle was suffering from a dislocated shoulder.

Monday evening, to talk over plans for Sunday community services for the coming year.

It was voted to hold these services which will probably commence after the new year. Another meeting will be held before that time to definitely decide on the date of beginning.

Last year these services were held through the co-operation of the two parishes and were most successful, the meetings being held in one church on one Sunday evening and in the other church on the following week. Special music and talks by the pastors of the two churches made these meetings especially interesting and many have requested their continuance this year.

Those at Monday night's meeting were Rev. A. H. Fuller of the Congregational church, Rev. C. H. Schaub of the Methodist church and Joseph E. Stott, Edwin W. Brown and J. W. Stark.

Spoke on Work in Smyrna

Mrs. Ralph Harlow, for many years a representative of the American Board of Foreign Missions at Smyrna, was the speaker at the morning session at the South church Sunday and gave a very interesting story of her work among the Armenians.

Mrs. Harlow's talk was of the pleasant side of life in Smyrna, and she gave a few grim details. She described the location of the city, saying that it was set in a bowl of hills, with a beautiful harbor in front where the ships of the world pass. The houses are set directly on the streets and are all tiled-roofed, making the city from a distance seem very picturesque.

Mrs. Harlow's life there has been especially interesting. She said that the missionaries are not to be pitied, as they were well treated and had most of the comforts of modern life. She described the girls' school and the boys' school and told of the preparations for the city was taken and burned by the Turks. Some of the missionaries who left the city have taken with them Greek boys and girls who will be trained in American colleges free of expense.

The people of the city are very much like the people of other cities. The population is largely made up of Greeks and Armenians, but they are cultured and refined and pleasant to meet. The city, situated as it is, is one of the most cosmopolitan cities in the world.

Mrs. Harlow left the city only a few weeks

NEPONSET BLACK WATERPROOF BUILDING PAPER

Making a Few Nickels
Save Many Dollars

THE difference in first cost between a roll of ordinary building paper and a roll of Bird's Neponset Black Waterproof Building Paper will buy only a few cigars.

But, Oh, the difference in protection in future years!

It is absurd to sneathe roof boards, or walls with a non-waterproof building paper because these soak up moisture like a sponge and quickly disintegrate. Bird's Neponset Black Waterproof Building Paper lasts as long as the building.

Save coal and colds. Keep your house warm on cold days and cool on warm days and always dry by using Bird's Neponset—the building paper that is really waterproof.

Chapter VI Continued

"Miss Bett!" he cried. At that she flushed. "Why," said Cornish, "you must have been coming Milton yesterday when I saw you. I noticed Miss D had her bag. He stopped, stared. 'You mustn't tell that! You won't!'"

"Course not." He mulled it. "Tell me this: Do they know? I mustn't tell that! You won't!" "I never told!" "You don't know she went." "That's a funny thing," he blurted for you not to tell her folks—I right off. Before last night. . . I don't know them. Dwight'd let up on that—he'd joke her after a while."

"It seems—"

"I'd talk about disgracing her."

They wouldn't know what to do. There's no sense in telling them. They aren't a mother and father," Lulu said.

Cornish was not accustomed to deal with so much reality. But Lulu's reality he could grasp.

"You're a trump anyhow," he affirmed.

"Oh, no," said Lulu modestly. Yes, she was. He insisted upon it.

"You've been a Jewel in their home all right," said Cornish. "I bet they'll miss you if you do go."

"They'll miss my cooking," Lulu said without bitterness.

"They'll miss more than that, I know. I've often watched you there—"

"You have?" It was not so much pleasure as passionate gratitude which lighted her eyes.

"You made the whole place," said Cornish.

"You don't mean just the cooking?"

"No, no. I mean—well, that first night when you played croquet. I felt at home when you came out."

That look of hers, rarely seen, which was no less than a look of loveliness, came now to Lulu's face. After a pause she said: "Well, I must be going now. I wanted to say good-by to you—and there's one or two other places. . ."

"I hate to have you go," said Cornish, and tried to add something. "I hate to have you go," was all that he could find to add.

Lulu rose. "Oh, well," was all that she could find.

They shook hands, Lulu laughing a little. Cornish followed her to the door. He had begun on "Look here, I wish. . ."

"good-by," and paused, wishing intensely to know what he would have said. But all that he said was:

"Good-by. I wish you weren't going."

"So do I," said Lulu, and went, still laughing.

Cornish saw her red dress vanish from his door, flash by his window, her head averted. And there settled upon him a depression out of all proportion to the slow depression of his days. This was more—it assailed him, absorbed him.

He came back to his table, and sat down before his lawbook. But he sat, chin on chest, regarding it. No . . . no escape that way. . .

A step at the door and he sprang up. It was Lulu, coming toward him, her face unsmiling but somehow quite lighted. In her hand was a letter.

"See," she said. "At the office was this. . ."

Nothing succeeds like the efforts of a woman to be disagreeable.

Appreciation of Miss Emily A. Means

The following appreciation of Miss Emily A. Means which appeared in the recently printed treasurer's report of Abbot academy, written by Burton S. Flagg, for many years closely associated with her during the time she was principal of Abbot academy, will be of interest to her many friends in Andover.

The Treasurer must needs take space to record an appreciation of Miss Emily A. Means, late principal. For many years she was in constant contact with her personal and official problems. She presented a combination of clear thinking and a forceful mind with a keen sympathy for the best and a dignity that was essentially feminine.

She handled difficult problems, bore grave responsibilities, and her loyalty to the school and its great work was abiding and constant.

Miss Means believed in a school with a comparatively small body of students. Students and faculty were thus on terms of normal womanly intercourse, far beyond those that can exist in a large school. This policy she believed produced a compact social unit. Thw student of excessively quiet and reticent temperament did not find herself isolated.

Miss Means had great faith in woman's powers. She believed that the women who live daily with the students, intimately and helpfully, are the soul of a successful girls' school. She held in great respect intellectual culture and development. She was keen and unusually accurate in her estimate of the strength and weakness in individuals.

She worked faithfully and quietly to maintain high standards of scholarship and to assist the girls about her to grow in character and in mind. She many times had outlined to the Treasurer her belief that the curriculum was not of principal importance. It was the environment, the companionship, the character, the life of the institution that should count. For she always defined character as the "total reaction of a personality to its environment."

Since her leaving as principal, she followed with love and interest and faith the fortunes of her Alma Mater and "her children."

Andover Boy Is State Champion in Poultry Club Work

Philip Dimlich, sixteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Dimlich of 104 Salem street, is the state champion in poultry club work, according to an announcement just made by the Massachusetts Agricultural College at Amherst.

The young poultryman has housed one hundred pullets which he raised himself in a house which he designed and helped to build. He took care of the birds from November 1 to June 1, besides going to school, which necessitated a walk of two and a half miles daily, both morning and evening. Gasoline lanterns for light were used to prolong the day and thereby lengthen the hens' working hours. In December the owner was rewarded by a sixty per cent egg yield. In the seven months, a profit of $475 was made on one hundred pullets after deducting expenses of housing, feed, and labor in caring for the birds. This is a remarkable record for a boy who is a product of boys' club work.

Young Dimlich is now running his poultry plant on a commercial basis and building up two good strains, Rhode Island Reds and White Wyandottes. He is a graduate of the Stowe school and is now a second-year student at the Essex County Agricultural School.

During his first year he did not take up the poultry course, but may at a later date.

The reward of his success will be a trip to Amherst next summer, which will be his third trip to the Massachusetts Agricultural College. The first time he attended as the county potato club champion and the second time as the county poultry club champion. As county poultry club champion a year ago, he made a profit of $65 on thirteen birds. From these thirteen birds he has raised the stock which gave such excellent results in this year's project.

In Dimlich, Andover has the honor of producing the third state champion from Essex County.

Accepts Position as Director of Religious Education

Rev. Harry S. Lowd of Bartlett street has accepted a position as director of religious education in connection with a large Congregational church in Naugatuck, Conn., and left town today to assume his new duties.

He will have charge of all the young people's activities as well as the Church School. This is an important position in a broad field with great opportunities.

Mr. Lowd has held pastorates in East Walpole and at the Riverside church in Lawrence. During the past winter he preached at the Congregational church of National City of California.

Chosen Organist in Winchester

Professor Walter Edward Howe, supervisor of Music at Abbot Academy and formerly organist and director of the Civic Symphony Orchestra, Norfolk, Va., has been elected organist and director of music at the First Congregational church, Winchester, succeeding Richard W. Grant, who at one time was supervisor of music for the Winchester and Lexington public schools, and has been appointed head of the department of music at the Pennsylvania State College. While in Norfolk Professor Howe was organist and choir master of the old St. Paul's church and sub-deacon of the Virginia Chapter of the American Guild of Organists.

General Edwards to Be Chairman of Christmas Seals Sale

Major General Clarence R. Edwards, U.S.A., has accepted the chairmanship of the Health Seal Sale in Massachusetts the coming Christmas season. In this he is aided by a committee of influential men and women representing all sections of the state.

The Christmas Health Seal Sale is conducted by the many local public health associations in Massachusetts advised by the Massachusetts Tuberculosis League, which is the federation of those societies, and thirty million seals will be ready in December for the renewed expression of the people of the state of their interest in better health. The Health Seal is the most democratic expression of interest on record, in that the seals may be purchased in the smallest quantities, and every man, woman and child may be a helper.

In eight or ten communities in the state the sales of last Christmas have financed the summer health camps for children, in others they have furnished the funds for introducing the Modern Health Crusade, and in still others they have helped pay the costs of a local nurse. They are devoted always to a public-spirited community benefit.

There is evidence this year that other states of the Union will enter into the seal sale with unusual energy, and Massachusetts may be relied on to keep up her interest and standing in this country-wide annual appeal.

W. R. C. Hallows' Party

The regular meeting of General William F. Bartlett Women's Relief Corps was held Tuesday night in G. A. R. hall and routine business was transacted. It was voted to entertain the veterans at the Chelsea Soldiers Home on Nov. 17, and all the members of the corps were urged to attend. Plans were made for the visit to the laundry on Thursday of this week.

Following the meeting a Hallows' evening social was held, and "three live ghosts" attended to the wants of those assembled by serving them with a lunch of coffee, sandwiches, doughnuts and cheese.

The electric lights were turned off and all sat in a circle under the light of Jack o' lanterns, while the ghosts flitted back and forth. Those who had charge of the entertainment which was a surprise to most of the members, were Mrs. Clare Norton, Mrs. J. I. Pitman and Mrs. Thomas Platt.

Our operators are desirous of giving good service and are anxious to avoid errors. Error calls simply make additional work for them; therefore, every instinct of self-interest suggests that they answer calls promptly and correctly.

Mistakes occasionally will occur, some unquestionably resulting from operating errors, others from the calling of wrong numbers by subscribers. Not infrequently some defect in the delicate equipment of the central office is found to be responsible for a fault which the subscriber attributes to the operator.

It is our duty and our desire to strengthen these weak points in our service, whether the weakness be human or mechanical, and we can do it if subscribers do not wait until criticisms become complaints.

May I suggest this form of co-operation:

If there is reasonable doubt of the accuracy of our reports, such as "don't answer", "telephone disconnected", etc., I recommend that the chief operator be called at once. She is directly in charge of the operating room and responsible for its discipline. Therefore service criticisms should be discussed with her because in the great majority of instances, she is in a position to make prompt investigation and adjustment.

If the trouble is persistent, I want to hear of it and I will be especially grateful to those whose criticisms give dates and facts upon which to base a definite inquiry.

F. G. CHENEY, Manager.

Community Services

Rev. F. A. Wilson, pastor emeritus of the Free Church, was the speaker at the Shawsheen Village Community service held in Post Office hall on Sunday evening at 7.00 o'clock. Mr. Wilson's very interesting sermon on "Prayer" pleased a large gathering. Rev. Harry Lowd of Andover was the scheduled speaker but was unable to attend. The choir, newly formed, sang for the first time at these services and it was much enjoyed by those present. A great deal of interest is being shown in this church society and it is hoped to make it one of the best in the vicinity under the very able leadership of Dr. Plattelcher of Phillips Academy, who was the organizer of the choir.

Rev. A. S. Wheelock of the Free Church will be the speaker on next Sunday evening.

Organization of Victory Class

On Sunday, October 22, the older boys of the Shawsheen Community Sunday School met under the leadership of Dr. Stowers and organized the Victory Class. The following officers were elected: President, William Morrissey; secretary, Irving Clark; treasurer, Walter Gordon. It is the intention of the class to make a study of the various teachings of the Bible with special attention being paid to the relation between the Bible lesson and conditions of life today. The boys also plan to meet socially twice a month, to hold bowling matches, listen to invited speakers, arrange suppers or entertainments, go on hikes, etc. Any boy in the Village over thirteen years of age is cordially invited to attend, regardless of his particular creed.

FIELD DAY TOMORROW

Overseers of American Woolen Company
Arrange Program of Sports to be Run Off on Balmoral Field

On Saturday afternoon there will be held on the Balmoral Athletic field at Shawsheen Village a mammoth field day which will be attended by employees of the five mills of the American Woolen Company in this vicinity, the Wood, Washington, Ayer and Prospect at Lawrence and the Shawsheen Mills at Shawsheen.

This affair is given by the overseers of these mills to the employees in their departments and with fair weather should attract the largest crowd that has ever assembled here. A joint committee representing the five mills have arranged an attractive program including a list of field and track events and by either verbal or written invitation every employee has been urged to be present and enter some of the contests.

The overseers have had this event in mind for a long period but it was decided not to hold it until the close of the busy summer activities, such as outings and other functions at Balfour Recreation Camp. Balmoral field which was formally opened two weeks ago is an ideal place for the affair. The ball field, the running track and the jumping area are all in first class condition and await the athletic stunts of the mill employees next Saturday. A new cement and steel grandstand to seat between 4,000 and 5,000 people will be completed this fall. It will be arranged at the games so that the greater part of it can be occupied.

A complete assortment of prizes has been provided for the winners in the various competitions. The first prizes will have a cash value of not less than $10 and the second prizes will be valued at not less than $5.

Besides the prizes for the individual winners there will be a feature that will sustain the interest among the employees of the respective mills. It is a large loving cup donated by President William M. Wood and which will be awarded for one year to the mill making the most points in the afternoon's contests, first place counting five points and second place counting three points. A winning contestant will not only win an individual prize, but some points will also be secured for the mill which he represents. Only employees of the five mills mentioned will be allowed to take part in the competitions and all the employees will be eligible to participate.

The affair will be the occasion of the first public display of the American Woolen Company flag. The colors which will be shown before President Wood and the entire assembly at the field, are of a design adopted by the Department of Labor. There will also be flags representing each of the five mills, each designed by an employee, all placed in an appropriate section of the grandstand where the employees and their friends are expected to take places from which to view the games.

There will also be a parade on Balmoral Field of the national colors and flags by groups of the various nationalities employed in the five mills in this community.

There will be special features at the field day which in themselves will be entirely out of the ordinary. Two Indian Chiefs of the Penobscot Tribe from the Reservation at Oldtown, Me. and who are employees of the Ounegun Mills in Oldtown, will be present in their war dress of paint and feathers at the field day activities. A member of the Chinese race, perhaps the only one in the Textile Industry in the United States, at least as a weaver who is employed in the Pioneer Mills at Pittsfield, Me., will also be present.

The first event will be held promptly at 2 o'clock. The gates will be open at 1 o'clock. All employees and their families and friends are cordially invited.

THE COMMITTEES
Prominent among the various committees having charge of the field day are the following: Entrance committee, chairman, Overseer Archibald of the Washington Mills; Overseers Hilton, Washington; Callison, Wood; Cutler, Ayer; Malloy, Prospect; and Johnson, Shawsheen Mills.

SHAWSHEEN VICTORIOUS

Smith & Dove and Abbot Worsted Juniors
Fail to Score in Double Header
Played on Saturday

Balmoral Athletic field was the scene of a double header Saturday when the American Woolen soccer team defeated the Smith & Doves by the score of 3-0 and the Shawsheen A. A. won over Abbot Worsted 5-0.

The opening game between American Woolen and Smith & Dove was featured by the spirited play by the Andover boys in the opening sessions that led one to believe that the Woolens would have any they could do to eliminate the Smith & Dove boys from the series. Not until four minutes before half time were the Woolens able to register their first goal and opening score, when Barclay netted from a scrimmage in the Smith & Dove goal mouth.

The second half found the Woolens more in the picture; evidently they had worn the juniors down, yet the Woolens' display was not of a very bright description and had they been up against a heavier side, a different story might have been told. It could be seen that in close plays, the Woolens came out on top in a majority of occasions, Wilson and Stewart being very forceful at times with sheer weight in the making.

For the Woolens, Rennie was not found wanting and on two occasions made clever saves. Higginbotham and Butler were always safe, while the halfbacks have been seen to better advantage, and although Stewart seemed to appear in every play he was inclined to overdo things at times and hampered his forwards. Barclay and Sullivan were good on the right. Wilson was thrustful while Inch made a good forager. His partner Law on the wing, was well taken care of by James Nichol. G. Davies whose shooting was far from accurate, was in on many plays.

FIRST HALF
W. Davies started the game for Smith & Dove, who were first to press when Higginbotham conceded a corner that was well cleared by Jones. Watson got away grandly and a place to Wilson found the centre shooting wide.

The Woolens forced a corner and Craik was called upon to clear his lines. Inch was now in evidence but his parting shot travelled wide. The Smith & Dove goal had a narrow escape when Craik rushed out to clear and missed, but Jack Nichol rushed in to make a timely clearance.

The Smith & Doves were cheered as they made a raid on the Woolens' goal but Butler and Higginbotham sent them back. Watson and Inch were now conspicuous on the left and Law was given a chance but his shot was well saved by Craik. With Smith & Dove now pressing, Henderson headed in for Rennie to save under the bar, and in the next play, the goalie had all he could do to save at the foot of the upright. Higginbotham did well to clear from W. Davies, enabling Watson to get in a nice run on the left before placing to Inch, only to find Craik saving well from the inside man.

Jones was twice penalized within a few minutes. The game was well contested and nearly fought. Law was given a chance but his shot was wild and wide of the mark. Play travelled to the Woolens' goal and Rennie saved well from W. Davies. Stewart seen Sullivan away on the right and the winger put in a dandy shot that Craik had all he could do to tip over the bar for a fruitless corner. Wilson made a desperate effort to break through but Craik saved to pick the ball right on his toes for a good save. Two of the Smith & Dove players collided and were injured, but resumed play again. The Woolens pressed and from a scramble in the goal mouth Barclay beat Craik in the corner of the net, half-time being called with American Woolen leading by one goal to nothing.

SECOND HALF
Wilson restarted and play was waged in midfield for a time. Barclay got away and served Sullivan but the winger was stopped by Jack Nichol. Stewart was penalized and saved at the expense of a corner. The Woolens now pressed on the left and the ball was crossed for Barclay to put in a shot wide of the mark. The Woolens were now having most of the play when Stewart placed Wilson in possession for the centre to make a fine burst only to see the centre forward well stopped by Jack Nichol bang in front of the goal mouth. For some infringement, the Smith & Doves were penalized 25 yards out and Higginbotham came pretty close with a fine drive that just went outside of the upright, while Law in the next few minutes made two unsuccessful attempts.

Craik was now severely pressed and was called upon to save from Barclay and Wilson, the goalie being fully equal to the occasions. The Smith & Doves cleared their lines and carried play to the Woolens' goal, Rennie making a nice save from Campbell close to the upright. Law got away on the left and from a good cross Barclay found the net with a good shot, thus the Woolens now led by two goals. Stewart and Wilson now changed positions. In a raid on the Smith & Dove goal Jones was penalized for jumping. The Woolens pressed and Stewart hit the upright with a good shot. Shortly after Jones received possession, and with a good drive, beat Craik in the net, the goalie having no chance to save, his sight of the ball being blocked by his colleagues in front. The Woolens with a three-goal lead had the game well in hand until the finish, when time was called with the result, 3 to 0, in favor of American Woolen.

American Woolen—Rennie; Higginbotham, Butler; Jones, Stewart, Watson; Sullivan, Barclay, Stewart, Inch, Law.
Smith & Doves—Campbell, Caldwell, W. Davies, Henderson, N. Nichol; McFarland, Lynch, Jr. Nichol; John Nichol, Davies; Craik.
Referee: P. Darcy.
Linesmen: T. Gunter and W. Brennan.
Time of game: 90 minutes.
Goal scorers: Barclay 2, Jones 1.

Low started the game for Shawsheen with Abbot pressing in the opening stages and Hurrell was called upon to clear his lines. Play was carried to the Abbot's goal and McNiff was conspicuous in defending gamely under pressure. Play was fast and the ball travelled rapidly from end to end. It could be seen that the Abbot's meant business as they swung the ball around freely and from one of these attacks Conney drove in a good one that shook the crossbar and from the rebound Kavanagh fired over the bar. Jackson cleared well from a melee in front. Shawsheen broke away and Holmes had to save a good shot from Low. Blott got in some good tackling and was instrumental in sending Douglas down the line, who sent across well for Kavanagh to shoot and Hurrell to save.

Counsell, Shawsheen's new player, was now seen with a good run, but was well tackled by Blott. Shawsheen forced a corner and the Abbot's goal was extremely fortunate to escape being lowered. Play was carried to the Shawsheen goal but by hanging on too long within measurable shooting distance the Abbot's chances were spoiled. McNiff was injured and was taken out of the game for a time. Deyermund got away nicely on the right but his parting shot sailed over the bar. With play now confined in the Abbot's territory one of the Abbot players was injured close to the touch line and shortly after Low easily netted.

The game now became fast and furious and Low was going nicely when Lund pulled him up with a fine clearance. Dougherty then tried a shot that went wide of the mark. Haddon was playing a big game for Shawsheen at his stage by his breaking up methods. McNiff who was now playing center half placed out to Douglas, and the winger passed inside to Kelley for the inside right to shoot wide. Hurrell was pressed hard at this stage and saved cleverly. Blott was clever in beating an opponent while Jackson was prominent with a timely clearance from Douglas. Haddon tried to force his way through but Holmes was there at the shot. Lowe got away with a good run down the field, but in trying to turn in a shot the ball went outside the upright with Holmes in close attendance, but no whistle had done and Low was quick on the ball again and placed in the net. A little later half time was called. Shawsheen leading by 2 goals to 0.

SECOND HALF
Conney restarted and Holmes was immediately called up to clear his lines from Dougherty. It could be seen that much of the early fight had been taken out of the Abbot's and the play was running greatly in Shawsheen's favor. After 15 minutes play, Skea, who had changed positions with Counsell got away from Walker and the winger centered well for Walker to gather on the run and with a good shot, drove the ball in the net, Holmes having no chance to save.

At last, Douglas got away on the right and succeeded in forcing a corner from which Dougherty cleared. Walker was now much in evidence in both attack and defense. He was sure playing a grand game and it was mainly through his efforts that Skea got away to cross the ball well for Low to add on goal No. 4. He came back strong with a good drive over the bar.

The Shawsheen's left flank was greatly in evidence, Walker and Skea combining well, the former giving a great account of himself for his first appearance on the Shawsheen team. He displayed great attacking powers and was very assertive in defensive tactics. He had another drive and Holmes did well to clear just before time. Skea crossed over from the left for Deyermund to place in the net when time was called a little later, Shawsheen running out winners by 5 to 0.

Shawsheen A. A. Gurrell; Caldwell, Jackson; Coleman, Haddon, Skea; Deyermund, Dougherty, Low, Walker, Counsell.
Abbot Juniors—Melia, Kavanagh, Conney, Kelley, Douglas, Canton, Farquhar, Blott; McNiff, Lund; Holmes.
Referee: S. Green.
Linesmen: J. Lum and J. Deyermund.
Time of game: 90 minutes.
Goal scorers: Lowe 3, Walker 1, Deyermund 1.
